Dear Ron:

Many thanks for turning in such a first-rate piece of work with your report on SOPs that shape biocontainment facility plans at last week's conference on biocontainment facilities in Las Vegas. Although I was not able to sit in on your session (I drew a different card), you got high marks from those who did – including our Tradeline staffer. The report was: "Very good session – definitely delivered on the topic, good energy, engaged the audience, good detailed information, good two-person presentation coordination." Kudos on a job very well done!

The early group feedback on the conference in general is that almost everyone was more than satisfied with what they got. So far, the overall conference evaluation tallies are running 56%-Excellent (highest possible score), 40%-Good, 4%-Satisfactory, and 0%-Poor. People seemed to like the sheer amount of information, creative ideas, new connections, lessons learned that they picked up, the pace, and the open, candid, knowledge-sharing atmosphere.

Once we have a full quorum of evaluations in hand, I'll have the final tallies and evaluation details compiled and sent to you.

Thank you, Ron, for being such a substantive contributor to these proceedings. Now that you are a veteran of the Tradeline format I hope you'll be back for more.

Best regards,

Steve Westfall, Ph.D.
President
